INTERVIEW WITH MR. JOHN STORMER

ANNOUNCER: AMERICA WAKE UP, in cooperation with the Daughters of the American Revolution, State of Illinois, presents Phyllis Schlafly:

PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY:

ANNOUNCER: In the mountains of South Carolina, there is a beautiful spot which the Indians named "Tamassee", meaning "The Place of the Sunlight of God." Today Tamassee is again a place where the Sunlight of God goes into many lives to bless and strengthen them. For more than 40 years, Tamassee has meant home, education and opportunity to hundreds of mountain children who attend the school built, financed and maintained by the Daughters of the American Revolution. The continuing need for this unique school is shown by the overwhelming number of applications received every summer. Tamassee is a boarding school for underprivileged children, with hundreds of boys and girls depending on it for shelter, food, clothing, education, and medical care. Every child in the boarding school is assigned duties. The children help in the dining room, kitchen, laundry, dairy and on the farm. Two things are constantly stressed -- the dignity of labor and accepting responsibility. This contributes in a great measure to the successful lives led by the graduates of Tamassee DAR School in South Carolina, a school where many hundreds of America's underprivileged children were given a good start in life by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Listen in again next week at this same time for another in the series of programs called AMERICA WAKE UP.
